Holland the home of flowers

SCILLA SIBIRICA

Some Heralds Of Spring for your garden

These pretty early flowering bulbs are very effective in rock gardens, along borders or planted in masses in the lawn or near the shrubbery.

They are perfectly hardy, and will reappear each year to remind you that spring is on its way. Scilla Campanulata is an exception to the rule, and do require some protection from frost (like crocuses), and they flower about the end of April.

Depth of planting: Chionodoxa 2½"; Snowdrops 3" Grape Hyacinths 4"; Scilla Sibirica 4"; Scilla Campanulata 4".

CHIONODOXA
Glory of the Snow

Scilla Sibirica

These early flowering bulbs produce an abundance of lovely blue flowers. They are most useful for planting in a rockery, in borders, or in front of a shrubbery, where they will naturalise freely.

100 for $2.50

GRAPE HYACINTHS Muscari

SCILLA CAMPANULATA

Chionodoxa

Glory of the Snow

Producing beautiful blue flowers with white centers. Chionodoxa are exceptionally suitable for planting in rockery and borders. They are very free flowering and naturalise freely.

12 for 35 c. 25 for 70 c.
100 for $2.50

Scilla Campanulata

These bulbs are not real hardy, a temporary covering of leaves or other material on top of the ground where these bulbs have been planted is essential to protect them from frost. They produce large tall spikes with many florets to each spike.

IMPORTED LONG STEMMED TULIPS

As it is not possible to list all the varieties we import from Holland, we have listed some of the best and most popular varieties, including some of the best new introductions of recent years. If any other varieties are required, kindly let us know. All varieties listed are specially suitable for planting in your garden. The proper depth of planting for all tulips is 4 inches from the top of the bulb to the surface of the ground. All newly planted tulips require a temporary covering of leaves or other material to protect them from frost the first winter.

DARWIN TULIPS

(long stemmed)

Of all tulips, Darwin Tulips are the most popular ones. With their beautiful large flowers on long graceful stems, they are indeed the aristocrats of tulips.

Planted outside, Darwin Tulips with their gorgeous colors produce a magnificent display of color and beauty during May.

DAFFODILS OR NARCISSI

The large trumpet varieties are usually called daffodils, the smaller types narcissi. They thrive in any garden, in any place, light or shaded, flowering each spring for many years if left undisturbed. Plant as early as possible, in well loosened ground, the large types about 6 inches deep, the smaller types 4 inches. Be sure to apply a temporary covering of leaves or other material on the ground where the bulbs have been planted, to protect them from frost the first winter.
